VICTORIA WILSON

PRESIDENTS MESSAGE

Hopefully we will be able to celebrate several Republican primary victories at our June meeting. We will then know who we are going to work for and support in the November election. Call everyone you know to "get out the vote" June 3rd. We must send a message to the progressives; "Energy and persistence conquers all things." -(Benjamin Franklin) We have both!

WHRWF does not meet formally in July and August, but as Republican women we must continue our political education throughout the summer. Listen to talk radio's Rush Limbaugh, Larry Elder, Dennis Prager or your favorite radio host, read the Wall Street Journal, The Hillsdale Newsletter and political commentaries on the internet. Read James Madison by Lynn Chaney, Border Wars by Lou Dobbs, Things that Matter by Charles Krauthammer, Not Cool by Greg Gutfeld or one of so many conservative books available today. Then, if you are so inspired, write a short book review for News & Views. Watch Fox news; Megan Kelly and Judge Jeannine Pirro are two of my favorites.

Let's talk to as many people as we can about conservative values, the importance of voting, staying politically educated, and joining our club. We can be effective.... Our scholarship awards were a good start. I hope you were as inspired as I was.

Come back to our September meeting inspired and informed. Bring a new member or guest, they will thank you for getting them involved with WHRWF.

A CHALLENGE for all WHRWF members

A FREE LUNCH!

RENEE RIDOSH

2nd VP MEMBERSHIP

We have reached a total membership of 181 – 150 Members and 31 Associates. Included in the total membership are 13 new Members and 4 new Associates. Only 36 new Members and 6 new Associates more to match our 2013 totals.

Who would like to receive their lunch for free at the June meeting? All you have to do is be the first member to bring in 2 new members by June 7. What is the easiest way to accomplish this task? Make copies of or use the form in this newsletter! Be sure to place your name on the form before you give it out so that when I receive it, you will get the credit. The winner will be announced at the meeting.

Any membership questions or changes to your address, phone number or email can be reported to me at renee@intendecor.com or 818-888-8281.

See you at the June meeting!

JUNE SPEAKER

1st VP PROGRAMS

John L. Hancock

How Limited Government, Individual Rights, Private Property, and Capitalism Created the Most Free and Prosperous Act in History

John is generally recognized on both sides of the Atlantic as one of the leading figures in the field of American exceptionalism, conservative history, and the foundational infrastructure of English-speaking societies. His book, Liberty Inherited, is an Amazon best-seller and has been adopted by high schools for their AP World History and AP U.S. Government classes. In January, John was honored by both the British and European parliaments when he was invited to be the special guest at a conservative conference in London. While there, John was given a private tour of parliament and had the unique privilege of setting in on a session of the British Parliament.

John speaks professionally on the subject of liberty, freedom, and the unique place the United States holds in the world, and the role it played historically in bringing freedom and prosperity to that world. Additionally, he is a founding member of the Unite IE coalition and is a co-host of the Unite IE Radio Program that airs on KTIE AM 590 (part of the Salem Radio Network).

John Hancock with Daniel Hannan, Conservative Member of the European Parliament holding each other's books.
John will be selling his book, LIBERTY, at our meeting.

Legislation

Official CFRW Proposition Positions

There are two measures for the upcoming primary election in June, Props 41 and 42.

Both propositions were placed on the ballot by the Legislature. The CFRW Voting Body has voted to OPPOSE Prop 41 and SUPPORT Prop 42.

After extensive research and analysis, the CFRW has come out against Prop 41.

Prop 41 is titled the Veterans Housing and Homeless Prevention Bond Act. Taken at face value, this would seem like a proposition we should support. But upon further review and analysis, Prop 41 does little to fix the homeless veteran problem and actually does more harm to veterans looking to purchase homes. Prop 41 would take $600 million away from the CalVet program, a $900 million bond program passed by voters in 2008, and instead uses that money to build multifamily, low income housing for homeless vets. The original CalVet program helped vets secure loans for purchasing property, homes, and farms. This new prop is leaving only $300 million for those vets and instead using $600 million in bond money to support approximately 19,000 homeless vets in the state of California. California has almost 2 million vets living here, yet we are shifting 2/3rds of already approved bond money to help 1% of vets in the state. We believe that the homeless vets should be helped- with a hand up, not a hand out. Prop 41 would build all new multifamily, low income housing, which is why labor unions are big supporters of the bill. But Prop 41 would also create a new tax liability for Californians, averaging in at least $50 million annually in new costs over the next 15 years. Prop 41 would also create new bureaucracies for its implementation, many of these overlapping with already established state and federal programs for our homeless vets. This creates more waste and unnecessary spending when this bond money could be better spent to help our vets. We believe that our vets deserve creative solutions. A robust economy and affordable, competitive college programs would help Californian veterans. How about tax credits for businesses that employ vets? Or reworking the CalVet program for better loan options for vets to purchase property themselves. Prop 41 is the easy answer, not the right answer.

We OPPOSE Prop 41!

By contrast, Prop 42 is a straightforward bill. The CFRW Voting Body voted to SUPPORT Prop 42. Prop 42 is called the California Compliance of Local Agencies with Public Records Act. It would require that all local agencies comply with the California Public Records Act (CPRA) and the Brown Act. A good question would be: why weren't localities already complying with these important transparency acts? Prop 42 would guarantee a private citizen's right to open, public records and to attend public meetings. This could save the state millions of dollars by eliminating the requirement that the state reimburse local agencies for compliance with these laws. Now the local agencies must comply with these transparency laws and will have incentives to keep costs down since the state will no longer reimburse costs. In an increasingly paperless world, most local agencies should make their records available online to keep costs low and transparency high.

We SUPPORT Prop 42!

AB 1522 would require every employer in California to provide paid sick leave for all employees that work 7 or more calendar days in a year. The bill also includes statutory penalties and costly litigation for alleged violations of the new law that could be harmful for businesses. This creates an unfair burden on employers. Many businesses have stated that if this bill passes, they won't be able to hire new employees or give raises because of it. We should be helping businesses help their employees, not mandate paid sick leave when they may not be able to afford it. A better solution might be to offer tax credits for employers who grant paid sick leave to their employees. AB 1522 is waiting to be heard in the Assembly Appropriations Committee. Call your Assembly member and urge a NO VOTE on AB 1522.

SB 935 would mandate a costly burden on employers in California. SB 935 would raise the minimum wage in California to $13 by 2017, and then increase yearly according to the California Consumer Price Index. This bill would apply to all industries, public and private in California. Raising the minimum wage would only increase the cost to employ and trickle down to consumers as well. But Democrats think that's ok, because higher consumer prices mean higher sales taxes. SB 935 would drive even more businesses out of California. Currently SB 935 is in the Senate Suspense File. Call your Senator and urge a NO VOTE SB 935!

SB 837 (Steinberg, D) would "require each school district or charter school that offers kindergarten to offer transitional kindergarten, and would require a child that meets specified minimum age requirements to be admitted to transitional kindergarten." While SB 837 might be well meaning, what it really mandates is more state spending and more union members with little actual benefits for our students. SB 837 encroaches on successful private and parochial pre-schools by ordering all school districts to provide a transitional kindergarten. Author of the bill, Darrell Steinberg, plans on his transitional kindergarten rollout to be fully implemented by 2020 and cost the California taxpayers over $1 billion a year. SB 837 was heard in the Senate Education Committee on Wednesday, April 9. Call your Senator and urge a NO VOTE SB 837!

VOTE

SUSAN
SHELLEY
FOR ASSEMBLY
IN CALIFORNIA'S 45TH DISTRICT

Why it matters: What to tell people who don't plan to vote

Submitted by Susan Shelley

We've all heard it from friends and neighbors, sometimes even from family members -- "I don't vote, because it doesn't matter."

So here's a guide to help explain why it does matter, and why it's important to vote in every election, even the ones that don't appear to be in doubt.

First, you never know. Last year in the 45th Assembly District, my campaign shocked the political world by coming within 329 votes of defeating a Democrat who spent ten times as much money, in a district where registered Democrats outnumber Republicans by a two-to-one margin.

A lot of people woke up the next morning and said, "Wow, I didn't think it would be a close election. I should have voted." No matter what the polls or the experts say, the result can be changed on Election Day if people turn out and vote.

Another reason it's important to vote is that everyone in politics makes decisions about the next election based on the voters who voted in the last one.

If you wonder why political parties abandon the people in some areas, ignoring their issues and disregarding their concerns, check the statistics on voter registration and turnout from the last two or three elections. That's what party officials do.

Perhaps the most important reason of all for voting in every election is that our government officials shouldn't be allowed to get too comfortable. When they think no one is watching, they sometimes do outrageous things.

Last June, the state Assembly voted to pass ACA 8, which would lower the vote needed to pass infrastructure bonds from the current two-thirds down to 55 percent. When bonds pass, the cost is added to your property tax bill. ACA 8 was brought to the Assembly floor on a Saturday, with no public notice or warning, and it passed by the bare minimum, with no votes to spare. It is currently pending in the state Senate.

If not for the fact that the FBI has taken away three Democratic state Senators in handcuffs, ACA 8 probably would have passed in the Senate already. On a Saturday.

We shouldn't have to count on the FBI to provide checks and balances in California government. A better way to keep everybody honest is to vote in every election.

There's an old saying that if you don't vote, you can't complain. Of course, that's not true. You can complain all you want. It just doesn't do any good.

If you want things to get better, you have to vote. Then government officials will know you exist and you're paying attention to everything they do.

Some of them might even get nervous enough to start doing their job.

THE 70TH ANNIVERSARY OF D DAY

AMERICANISM

GAIL DEMARIO

June 6 marked the 70th anniversary of the Allied forces landing in Normandy, France. Although the battle raged on the beaches for several more days, we tend to focus on the first day which was called "D Day." If ever there was an example of American courage and conviction, it was during the D Day landings on the French coast in 1944.

The landings took place along a 50 mile stretch of the Normandy coast. The Americans landed at Omaha Beach, Utah Beach and Pointe du Hoc. The Germans had so fortified the coast that their bunkers still stand today. 160,000 Allied troops began the assault on the beaches. 9000 were killed or wounded. 100,000 began the long march to defeat the Germans.

I have been to Normandy twice. We went to Omaha Beach first. We stood on the cliff over-looking the beach and looked out at the ocean. I was shocked to see that there was an unobstructed view of the beach and the Channel for as far as the eye could see. The same held true for Utah Beach, and at Point du Hoc, the Rangers had to climb the cliffs on ladders under the guns of the Germans. My first words were, "Did the mothers see this?" I asked this because I thought that maybe there was a choice about going into battle, and I was used to seeing war on television. Reporters and photographers in Viet Nam and everywhere since, went with the troops, shot battles, gave away strategy and positions, and defended their actions by saying "people have a right to know." Eisenhower apparently didn't feel that way. There were strict rules then that prohibited showing dead GI's in the newspaper or newsreels until the end of the war, and the press showed restraint in reporting on the war.

After the initial shock of discovering that the invasion forces had no cover, I became overwhelmed with pride for the Americans who just buckled down and did the job they were assigned. In spite of what must have been paralyzing fear, and seasickness, and being dropped in deep water instead of on the sand, and myriad other things that would stop normal human beings, they kept coming, and they kept fighting. Why do I consider these Americans so special? They weren't fighting for their own country! They weren't even near their own country. They fought and died that day to give France back to the French, and stop the Nazis from advancing into Great Britain. America stood with her allies, and because of American forces, the Germans were driven back to Germany, and the Allied Forces won.

What caused me to almost burst with pride for being an American was the number of monuments all over Normandy dedicated to the Americans who fought there. From the landing beaches to the museums to the small towns that were liberated that day, Americans are recognized and thanked profusely for their very large part in winning the war, and the French people held nothing back when it came to giving us credit when we spoke about it. No one questioned whether it was American values that guided us, and helped us win that war. It was!

Many things have changed since World War II; many attitudes and many rules about war and international relations. The word "ally" is bendable, war is about not hurting anyone, and patriotism is likened to extremism and nationalism. I believe that education should include this very important time in our history when greatness was an intrinsic part of the definition of America, and the rest of the world looked to us to show them the way.

JUANITA ROBBINS

CALLISTA LILY RING—Louisville High School

One of the greatest documents ever produced hangs in the rotunda of the National Archives Building in downtown Washington DC. Without it, our nation's Constitution might never have been ratified. Today, however, the Bill of Rights is treated like an annoying impediment to the lofty ambitions of an over-reaching federal government, and its place in our archives becomes more ironic each time we allow its tenets to be diminished or dismissed. The impetus for creating the Bill of Rights was the fear that when the Constitution became law, it might still allow tyranny by the federal government. During the ratification process in 1787, Federalists such as Alexander Hamilton and James Madison argued the Constitution needed no attendant document outlining individual rights. But Anti-federalists such as Patrick Henry were joined by a large number of ordinary Americans who believed the possibility of tyranny by the central government was real. It was not until Madison conceded that such a document was needed, and the Federalists assured the public that the first order of business for the new government would be to adopt a bill of rights, that the way was paved for our Constitution to be fully ratified. How horrified would the Anti-federalists be today to learn that despite the existence of the Bill of Rights, the U.S. Federal Government has nevertheless become as tyrannical as they feared it might without its protections? Our Federal Government's current administration has violated the First Amendment, which states that Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion; it seeks to weaken the Second Amendment, which guarantees the right of the people to keep and bear arms; it brazenly ignores the Fourth, which upholds the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects. However, the greater threat to our nation's liberty and freedom comes not from these direct attacks. More ominous is the complete and utter disregard the majority of our citizens have for the Ninth and Tenth amendments. The concepts outlined in these two amendments -- that rights not specifically enumerated in the Constitution are still retained by the people (IX), and that powers not given to the Federal Government are reserved to the States or to the people (X) -- are crucial to freedom and liberty, and when we ignore them, as we do today, we open the way for tyranny by our central government. These amendments remind us that whether our rights come from God or nature, they do not come from government. Government exists only to secure our rights. In the name of well-meaning progressivism, our nation rips itself from its Constitutional moorings, and in doing so, moves further from liberty and closer to tyranny. What role will the Bill of Rights play in America's future? I submit there is no America unless we halt the current lurch away from the founding beliefs contained in that one page document currently hanging in our National Archives.

JASMINE SALAMAT— El Camino High School

Every successful system needs to be built on a strong foundation. A career is build off a college degree, a house is build off a concrete foundation, and a country is built off it's laws and premeditated regulations. The United States' Bill of Rights was the foundation to the development of modern day America. One may argue that the government is the foundation America was built off of, but in order to restrict government power and ensure the peoples' rights are safe, the Bill of Rights was adapted. This grand document has been respected by government officials through decades, and because of it, Americans have the right to a fair trial, free speech, etc. Since these rights were not specifically stated in the Constitution, the point of the Bill of Rights is to make sure they are acknowledged. If free speech were not legal, could Martin Luther King Jr. have taken steps to abolish segregation? Without the right to an impartial jury, how many cases would have convicted an innocent person? Simple acts like this show us that without the basic 10 amendments that make up our Bill of Rights, we would have a much different world. We live in a country where we are not afraid to speak our minds (through the press and speech) and assemble in groups of similar likes and dislikes. This is the reason we are "The land of the free, Home of the brave." We fought for our rights as citizens, and live our comfortable modern lives because of it. The Bill of Rights is an ancient ideal and document, but it is still a large part of America's foundation. Like any foundation, it can never be removed and still maintain the structure it holds. Though some may say it is an "outdated" document, it outlines our basic rights as citizens and in the future, it will be just as important as it is today. Legal decisions are made based off of the amendments this document outlines, and that will never change. I think that as long as America remains the land we know so well, it could not function if the Bill of Rights were not a main part of government. Even though as a country we are developing and modernizing quickly, the Bill of Rights is a part of our history can never become obsolete. I know that decisions for America's advancement will continue to be based off the amendments our founding fathers created for the comfort of American citizens.
